

Welcome to this moment

Welcome to this moment
not any moment, but this moment in this moment lies a world of opportunities, imaginings, possibilities nothing is prescribed, nothing is determined there is only the unfolding of what is Old thought systems are dying (as well they should) new thought systems are emerging (as are so needed) if we are not deliberate in this moment, we risk recreating the old from our habitual thought patterns and so we must deliberately infuse the emergent new with something new at a slower pace, a deliberate pace making space for the divine to emerge along with the new bringing back the sacred ways infusing emergence with our intention for a more loving, more balanced, more compassionate world caring for our beautiful planet, without harm and without defilement

Our planet is trying to fight off the feverish infection that is us we must change how we relate to her, to each other, and to ourselves

And so, the starting point is with ourselves recognizing our own divinity noticing the in breaking of spirit in the daily aspects of our lives and in turn, we see more divinity in others (family, friends) but also in our other-than-human siblings (plants, animals, waters)

Now we can care for, and love, and cherish ourselves, each other, and the world our values shift and align in a new way where people and the planet are more important, more vital than the human concept of profit

Time is of the essence now for we have squandered much we either mature spiritually and transform our world or we don't, and watch the continuing apocalypse of destruction

We are not alone, we have spirit helpers we can heed their call, follow their guidance in the hopes of transforming our world one mystical experience at a time